ELLE Anniversary Issue Cover Star: Amrit

Forging Her Future

A regular on the international fashion runway circuit, Amrit reflects on the year with Ainee Nizami Ahmedi from her hometown in Punjab

Three years ago, when Amrit was studying at the Paris College of Art, she bagged her debut cover shoot. It marked a series of firsts for her, including wearing make-up and being in front of a professional camera. Since then, and particularly post her runway debut at Chloé, the Punjab-born model and artist has persistently added new milestones to her repertoire. This includes walking for mega-brands like Dior, Fendi, and Alberta Ferretti and starring in the campaigns of brands such as Miu Miu and Balmain. "Going from Punjab to Paris, I had never imagined what awaited me, especially as an introverted kid who found refuge in books, art, and nature," she says, letting me into her world.
